By Coamex This book is written by one of the most trusted names in the Pro-Consumer field: Consumer Reports. CR will test everything and give you an honest review, that is why I decided to purchase this book, since I'm a new father and wanted to provide the safest environment to my baby. This book gives you very good tips to protect your child anywhere and everywhere. Some of the details may apply to your home, some might not, but in summary, you will find everything you need to keep your little one away from known dangers, and that is priceless. For the price, this book is a steal. I recommend it! 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Every Parent of an Infant or Toddler Should Read this Book By schnorrer This book should be given to every mother of a new-born upon discharge from the hospital. It is broken down into chapters composed of short "tips" on how to improve the safety of your child at home. Even the most busy parent can read a few of the tips at a time and learn useful information. A few tips are common sense, but many reflect real world experience and insight. If you don't have an infant or toddler at home, buy it and give it as a gift to someone who does. It may be the most important gift a parent will ever receive. 7 of 8 people found the following review helpful. A Must-read for Parents! By Marilyn Heins Every parent should read this comprehensive, easy-to-read and understand guide to child safety at home, outdoors, and in the car. There is an enormous amount of information so I suggest parents, especially new parents, do a quick read to learn about hazards in familiar surroundings and what parents can do to prevent injury. Then when you are ready to buy a bicycle and helmet carefully re-read that section in the chapter, "On the Go" which also covers strollers, skates, and how to be a safe pedestrian. This book is so comprehensive I could only come up with one omission: under food safety I would have added food spoilage and hazards like bacterial contamination of purchased food urging parents to keep abreast of food recalls and warnings. Might a new parent feel overwhelmed thinking about all the possible dangers in their child's world? Maybe, but better safe than sorry. Plus the book will help a parent develop a "safety reflex" so you automatically turn in the pot handle even though there are no toddlers around. Plus you will be modeling that safety reflex for your kids which will help keep your future grandchildren safe. Marilyn Heins, MDPediatrician and parenting educator[...]

Your home. Your yard. That great big world out there. Hazards waiting to seriously injure your child are everywhere. Each year, millions of children sustain an injury serious enough to require medical care. The majority of these accidents can be prevented. As a parent, you want to do everything in your power to arm yourself with the best and most complete safety information available. But finding and keeping track of all of this essential information is a daunting task. This book, chock full of easily readable tips, advice, and clear illustrations compiles all the information time-crunched parents and caregivers need to keep their children safe both at home and on the go - so you can spend less time worrying, and more time enjoying your kids. - Which products are safe to use with your children and how to identify products that are not - How to eliminate potential hazards in every room in your home - Tips for your babysitters, grandparents and other caregivers - Tips beyond childproofing, from basic bite and sting care to more serious problems such as poisoning, choking, and food allergies. - Playground, beach, water safety and MORE. - Clear advice for choosing the right car seat and illustrated instructions for proper installation - Special section on the hazards of LEAD and what you can do about them. From one of the most trusted sources of safety information, here is an invaluable baby and child safety resource every parent and caregiver should own.
